Extreme Human Antiquity

Los Angeles, CA (April 11, 2025) “Devils tracks” in volcanic ash deposits from 345,000 years ago, human skeletons from Guadeloupe dated at 781,000 years, human footprints in Kentucky dating 298.8 million years old, a fossilized human brain from the Carboniferous. Could such anomalous discoveries be clever hoaxes or mistakes in scientific methodology?

Michael Cremo’s long awaited book, Extreme Human Antiquity: Further Investigations into Forbidden Archeology (Bhaktivedanta Book Publishing, Inc. ©2025) documents explosive cases of archeological finds that challenge modern concepts of human evolution. Although these ancient relics radically contradict established timelines for Homo sapiens, Cremo backs such discoveries with meticulous research and rigorous evidence while demonstrating how such finds have been subjected to a process of knowledge filtration.

An internationally acclaimed authority on human antiquity, Cremo’s best-selling Forbidden Archeology, co-authored with Richard L. Thompson, stunned scientists and laymen alike with countless case studies documenting anomalous human bones, human footprints, and human artifacts. Since then, this and its abridged version—The Hidden History of the Human Race—have been translated and published in over twenty languages worldwide.

Extreme Human Antiquity features additional groundbreaking discoveries that have surfaced since the publication of Forbidden Archeology. Such evidence demands a new account of human origins and expanded self-awareness.
